Soft as summer's

Andante

beau - ty, When ev'ning fades se - - rene, Gay as morning sunshine,

Mild as Cynthia's beams, Are the smiles of Ma - ry Kindly shed on me; Smiles of pure af - fection, Sweet as har - mo - ny.

Tender as the dew-drop,
That gems the violets' breast,
When the evening Zephyr
Sings the world to rest -
Are the tears of Mary,
In her eyes of blue;
Tears of purest feeling,
Known alas! to few.

Have you heard an Angel's
Harp, in fancy's dream?
Or a flute's soft murmur -
O'er a tranquil stream -
Thus, when evening blushes
Warm the whispering gale,
Are the songs that Mary's
Lovely lips exhale.
